tives or friends had been to see Payne. Atzdrodt was very nervous throughout the night, and did not sleep any, although he made several attempts. His brother was with him yesterday afternoon, and again this morning. his aged mother, who arrived during the night, also being present. The meeting of the condemned man and his mother was very affecting, and moved some of the officers of the prison who have become used to trying scenes. to tears. Rev. Dr. Butler, of the Lutheran Church, was sent for last night, and has been all night ministering to Atzerodt.

Herold was visited yesterday by Rev. Mr. Olds, of Christ (Episcopal) Church, and five of his sisters, and this morning the minister and the entire family of seven sisters were present with him. Herold slept very well several hours during the night.

Miss Surratt was with her mother several hours last night, as also Rev. Fathers Wiget and Walter and Mr. Brophy, who are also present this morning. She slept very little, if any, and required considerable attention, suffering with cramps and pains the entire night, caused by her nervousness. The breakfast was sent to the prisoners at the usual hour this morning, but none eat excepting Payne, who ate heartily.

The Final Scene. HABEAS CORPUS.

A writ of habeas corpus was issued by the

To-day, before Judge Wylie, the Court having been opened, Mr. Aiken addressed the Court.

Court, in the following words: DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA to-wit :- In the matter of Mary E. Surratt. Petition for babeas corpus.-The President of the United States, To Major General W. S. Hancock, commanding Military Division—Greeting: You are hereby commanded to have the body of Mary E. Surratt, detained under your custody, as it is said, together with the day and cause of her being taken and detained, by whatever name she may be called in the same, before the Criminal Court of the District of Columbia, now sitting at the City Hall, in the city of Washington, at the hour of ten o'clock a. m., this seventh day of July, 1865, to do and receive whatever shall then and there be considered of in this behalf, and have then there this writ. Witness Andrew Wylle, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of said District, the 7th day of July, 1865. R. J. MEIGS, Clerk. (Signed,)

Certified Served on General W. S. Hancock at the Metropolitan Hotel, at half-past eight DAVID S. GOODING, U. S. Marshal.

The writ had been placed in the hands of the Marshal, who had returned the writ, certified that it had been served at 8% o'clock a. m., and it is now thirty minutes past the hour, and he made this statement in order to know what course the Court will pursue.

District Attorney Carrington said he had but recently heard of the writ, and it appeared to him to be extraordinary. He had not seen the prisoner; did not know if she is in the court, and does not know if she will be brought into

Mr. C. thought that after the party had been tried by a legitimate court, condemned, sentenced, and the sentence approved by the Presia nt, it is too late to proceed in this manner. He was not prepared to enter upon an argument upon the jurisdiction of that court, but thought the case came strictly under the jurisdiction of that court, upon the principle that the offence was committed at a time when military tribunals have proper jurisdiction in Mr. Aiken thought lengthy discussion out of place.. The return has not been made of the body of Mary E. Surratt at the time. The prisoner cannot be purged of the charge withcut being duly brought before this court. The grounds of petition are simply that Mary E. Surratt is a private citizen, never in any military service. If she is guilty of any crime it was cognizable by this court.

Mr. Carrington, after reading the certificate of the Marshal, setting forth that he had served the writ at 8% o'clock, said he was only to defend the act of the Marshal, and that the duty required of him by direction of the Court, and he found that the Marshal had performed

The Court .- The case is not now here on its merits. On the petition of the party this morning at an early hour I directed this writ of habeas corpus to issue. The writ was issued, and was served upon Gen. Hancock, who has the custody of Mrs. Surratt, the party on whose behalf the writ was obtained. The writ required him to have the body of Mrs. Surratt, with the cause of her detention before this Court this morning, at 10 o'clock. He has neglected to obey the order of the Court, and the question now before us is, "What is the Court to do under the circumstances?"

That is the only question before the Court, at this time. Any discussion on the merits involved, would now be out of place. The Court acknowledges that its powers are inadequate to meet the military power possessed by Gen'l Hancock. If the Court were to decide at this moment that General Hancock was in contempt the only process which it would issue, would be an attachment for the disregard of its authority. But why issue an attachment against the whole military power of the United States This Court acknowledges that the laws are silent, and that it is without power in the premises, and therefore declines to make an order,

If there be a disposition on the part of the military power to respect the authority of the civil courts, they will respect the writ, which has already been served. If, on the other hand, it is their determination to treat the authority of this court with contempt in this matter, they have the power, and will treat with equal contempt any other process which the court might order. The court, therefore, must submit to the supreme physical power which now holds the custody of the petitioner, and declines to issue an attachment, or to make any other order in this case.

At ten minutes to 12 o'clock, Maj. Gen. Hancock entered the court with Attorney General Speed, who apologized to the Court for the apparent delay in making a return by Gen. Hancock, which was unavoidable. Gen. Speed then proceeded to read the return of Gen. Hancock, as follows :

HEADQUARTERS MIDDLE MILITARY DIVIS-10N, Washington, D. C., July 7, 1865.—To Hon. Andrew Wylie, Justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia: I hereby acknowledge the service of the writ hereto attached, and return the service of the writ hereto attached, and return the same, and respectfully say that the body of Mary E. Surratt is in my possession, under and by virtue of an order of Andrew Johnson, President of the United States and Commanderin-Chief of the Army and Navy, for the purposes in said order expressed, a copy of which is hereto attached and made part of this return; and that I do not produce said body by reason of the order of the President of the United States, endorsed upon said writ, to which reference is hereby respectfully made July 7,

Maj. Gen. U. S. Vol., Con'd'g Div.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, to-wit:-In the mat-ter of Mary E. Surratt, Petition for habeas corpus.-The President of the United States, To Major General W. S. Hancock, Commanding Mid-ale Division—Greeting:—You are hereby com-manded to have the body of Mary E. Surratt, detained under your custody, as, it is said to-gether, with the day and cause of her being taken and detained by whatsoever name she may be called in the same, before the Criminal Court of the District of Columbia, now sitting, at the City Hall in the city of Washington, at hour of ten o'clock a. m., this seventh day of July, 1865, to do and receive, whatever shall then and there be considered of in this behalf; and have then there this writ. Witness, Andrew Wylie, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of said District, the 7th day of July, 1865.

Test :- R. J. MEIGS, Clerk. EXECUTIVE OFFICE, July 7th, 1865 .- To Maj General W. S. Hancock, Commanding, &c.-I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do hereby declare that the writ of habeas corpus has been heretofore suspended in such cases as this, and I do hereby especially suspend this writ, and direct that you proceed to execute the order heretofore given upon the judgment of the Military Commission, and you will give this order in return to this writ. ANDREW JOHNSON, President. The Court proceeded to reiterate the views before expressed to Mr. Aiken, when he laid the case before the Court and concluded by remarking that no further steps would be taken

Attorney General Speed briefly rejoined, commenting upon the distinction between the civil and military jurisdiction, showing the utter impossibility of fighting battles, carrying on war, maintaining the Government in time of war, &c., by process of law.

ANOTHER APPLICATION FOR HABEAS CORPUS.

Mr. W. E. Doster, counsel for Payne and Atzerodt, applied to the Court this morning for a writ of habeas corpus, to have them brought before the Court. The return of Gen. Hancock had not then been made; but the Court stated that a writ had been issued for another party, (Mrs. Surratt,) which had not been regarded. The Court, under the circumstances, declined to issue a writ as petitioned for.

SCENE AT THE GALLOWS.

During the morning hours the spectators were not allowed inside the prison yard, but a view was obtained through the grated windows of the rooms on the lower floor of the penitentiary. Two men were seen engaged with a long ladder completing the arrangement of the nooses and fastenings of the stout manilla ropes to be used. Two of these ropes were on one side of the central one of the three supports to the beams. The platform was surrounded by a plain rail of plank and a flight of broad steps on the east side of the gallows had a similar railing of plank. A pile of raw red earth, within ten steps of the gallows, and close to the east wall of the penitentiary wall, designated the spot where the graves of the criminals were soon to be. It must have caused an additional sinking of the heart to the prisoners as they ascended the scaffold to see their open graves yawning to receive them. On the walls above was the long line of sentry guards pacing in their rope defined limits.

RELIC HUNTERS.

The relic hunters were about and despite the strong cordon of guards one man soon appeared with a handful of chips from the gallows and another with an inch bit of the rope.

TRYING THE DROP.

At 25 minutes past 11 an experiment, testing the drop, was made with 4 Parrott conical balls of weight of one hundred pounds each. Two of these weights were placed upon each drop. The props were then knocked from under and the experiment with the northern drop was satisfactory, with the southern drop there was a hitch. The experiment was repeated with the drops until they worked perfectly.

THE COFFINS.

Just south of the gallows stood an ominous looking pile of boxes of rough board, oblong, unpainted, unplaned, and of shoe-box shape. There were four of them; and they were the coffins of the convicts-one for Mrs. Surratt. one for Payne, one for Herold, and one for At-

THE PHOTOGRAPHER ABOUT.

At 12 o'clock the click of a hammer was heard in the upper story of the old workshop of Penitentiary days, in the centre of the prison yard, and the eyes of all were turned in that direction. Presently a window was raised. and forthwith was seen protruding the familiar snout of the camera, showing that the inevitable photographer was on hand. Gardner's good-humored face presently was seen over the camera, as he took "a sight" at the gallows, to see that it was focussed properly.

VIEW OF ATZERODT.

Through the cobwebbed bars of the outer wall of the cell range, the members of the press, gathered in the shady angle there, could get a view into the interior of Atzerodt's cell, No. 151. He was seated, leaning back against the wall, saying nothing, and looking to be in a sort of daze. His spiritual adviser, Rev. Dr. Butler, who had been with him all the long night, continued his prayers and exhortations, to which Atzerodt listened without apparently heeding. Shortly before 12 o'clock Dr. Butler left him for a short time, and Atzerodt was seen reading his Bible. He was clad in white shirt and pantaloons. Little could be seen of the other prisoners, but their spiritual advisers were yet busy with them-Rev. A. D. Gillette, of the 1st Baptist Church, with Payne; Rev. Mr. L. Olds, rector of Christ Church, with Herold; Rev. B. F. Wiget, S. J., Rev. J. A. Walter, Catholic, with Mrs. Surratt. Mrs. Surratt's daughter was with her throughout the morning, and up to the hour of execution.

DYING STATEMENT OF ATZERODT.

During the morning a female friend or sister of Atzerodt, from Port Tobacco, had an interview with him, she leaving him about eleven o'clock. He during the morning freely conversed with Dr. Butler and Mr. Winchester on religious topics, and before going to the gallows he made the following statement:

He took a room at the Kirkwood House on Thursday, in order to get a pass from Vice-President Johnson to go to Richmond. Booth was to lease the Richmond Theatre and the President was to be invited to attend it when visiting Richmond and captured there. Herold brought the pistol and knife to the room about 21/2 o'clock on Friday. He (Atzerodt) said he would not have anything to do with the murder of Johnson, when Booth said that Herold had more courage than Atzerodt and he wanted Atzerodt to be with Herold to urge him to do

There was a meeting at a restaurant about the middle of March, at which John Surratt, O'Laughlin, Booth, Arnold, Payne, Herold and himself were present, when a plan to capture the President was discussed. They had heard the President was to visit a camp, and they proposed to capture him, coach and all: drive through Long Old Fields to "T. B.," where the coach was to be left, and fresh horses were to be got, and the party would proceed to the river to take a boat. Herold took a buggy to "T. B.," in anticipation that Mr. Lincoln would be captured, and he was to go with the party to the river. Slavery had put him on the side of the South; he had heard it preached in church that the curse of God was upon the slaves, for they were turned black. He always hated the nigger, and he felt that they (the negroes) should be kept in ignorance.

He had not received any money from Booth, although he had been promised that if they were successful they should never want; that they would be honored throughout the Sorth and that they could secure an exchange of prisoners and the recognition of the Confed-

As soon as Atzerodt was informed of his sentence he betook himself to prepare to meet his God and at once sent for a Lutheran minister. and Dr. Butler was called. He expressed surprise that more time was not allowed him, and just previous to his being led out to the scaffold expressed himself as not quite sure of having made his peace with God.

CUTION. David E. Herold slept well several hours

HEROLD'S PREPARATIONS FOR EXE-

last night, but most of the night he was sitting up, either engaged with his pastor, Rev. Mr. Olds, of Christ Church, Episcopal, or in prayer. His sisters were with him from an early hour this morning to 12 o'clock, they being present when he partock of the sacrament at the hands of Dr. Olds. The parting was particularly affecting. Herold conversed freely with them, and expressed himself prepared to die.

PAYNE'S PREPARATIONS.

Lewis Payne Powell very freely conversed with Dr. Gillette and Dr. Striker on religious topics during the morning, sitting erect as he did in the court-room. From his conversation it appears that he was raised religiously, and belonged to the Baptist Churck until after the breaking out of the rebellion. He appeared to be sincerely repentant, and in his cell shed tears freely. He gave his advisers several commissions of a private character, and stated that he was willing to meet his God, asking all men to forgive, and forgiving all who had done aught against him. Col. Doster, his counsel, also took leave of him during the morning, as well as with Atzerodt.

MRS. SURRATT.

Mrs. Surratt's daughter was with her at an early hour this morning, and after she had given directions as to her private affairs she took leave of her; but once mere, before the time of execution, she had another and very affecting farewell interview, which melted the hearts of the stern soldiers, used to scenes of anguish. One of her male friends also had an interview with her and received directions from her concerning the disposition of her property. During the night and morning she received the ministrations of Revs. J. A. Walter and B. F. Wigett, and conversed freely to them, expressing, while protesting her innoconce, her willingness to meet her God. Her counsel, Messrs. Aiken and Clampitt, took leave of her during the morning.

THE CELLS AND THE PRISONERS. At quarter past 12 the sister of Atzerodt, clad in deep mourning and weeping bitterly, had an interview. Atzerodt slrowed considerable emotion but said little, and swayed his body forward and backward.

At half-past 12 loud sobs from Mrs. Surratt's cell told of the parting, scene between Mrs. Surratt and child, and presently Miss Surratt was supported from her mother's cell in hysteries of grief. Her sobs and cries were heard for some moments until she had passed through the iron gate and prison.

Several of the clergymen not immediately occupied with the prisoners now emerged from the cells and paused in the passage, indicating that the fatal moment was approaching.

Mr. Doster, counsel for Atzerodt, at this time had an interview with him to ascertain if he had any parting wishes to be executed. At 15 minutes to one the chairs were removed from the prisoners cells, to allow them to pass unobstructedly. About the same time the northerly door of the two opening from the cell ranges upon the yard was opened. A few minutes before one o'clock the guard was drawn up in square around the gallows. Still the prisoners did not come forth, and various rumors of reprieve for some of the prisoners crept around. It was reported that strennous efforts were being made in behalf of Mrs. Surratt; that

Payne had made a confession exonerating her from all share in the plot; that the writ of habeas corpus asked for by the counsel for Mrs. Surratt had been granted; that Gen. Hancock had refused to execute it, and had been arrested, and that the President had ordered his The rumors were put to flight by new movements in the vicinity of the gallows. Then followed another pause of suspense.

At 15 minutes past one, the procession merged through the prison door in the follow ing order, proceeded by a few moments by Gen. Hancock, who ordered the troops to a dress parade. At fifteen minutes past one, Major General Hartranft, commanding the prison, appeared, followed by his assistants, Colenel L. A. Dodd, Lieut. Colonels McCall and Fredericks, emerged from the prison door, followed by the mournful procession.

Mrs. Surratt came first, supported by an officer and a non-commissioned officer, and attended by Rev. Fathers Walter and Wigett. Atzerodt came next, attended by an officer, with whom walked his spiritual advisers, Rev. J. G. Butler, of the Lutheran Church, and Chaplain Winchester. Herold came next, attended by Rev. Dr. Olds, of Christ Church, (Episcopal:) while Payne, who was attended by Rev. Dr. Gillette, of the 1st Baptist Church of this city, and Rev. Dr. Striker, of Baltimore, brought up the rear.

Mrs. Surratt required to be almost lifted along by those who supported her, especially when they came to the steps leading up to the gallows. In addition to her prostrated physical condition, the chains upon her feet served to impede her progress. On arriving upon the platform she was placed at the extreme northern end of the platform, and seated upon a chair, where she was surrounded by her spiritual advisers. She sunk in a collapsed condition in her seat, leaning feebly upon her right arm, and with upturned and sorrowful eyes. A soldier behind held an umbrella over her to shield her from the fierce sun. She was dressed as on trial, in deep black, and with black bonnet.

Payne was placed next her and over the same drop with her. His eyes seemed somewhat reddened, and his face was suffused with unusual color, but otherwise his bearing was much the same as during his trial. He was clad in pantaloons and woollen shirt of sailor blue. He also wore a jaunty straw hat, with ribbon, &c., of sailor style, and altogether looked much like a clean-faced, well-developed

Next on the platform, but over the other drop, was Herold, who looked the most miserable physically of the lot, his face and clothes appearing dirty, with rusty black clothes and he wearing an old slouch bat with the brim turned down all around. He was in his stockings. Atzerodt was seated at the extreme southern end of the platform, over the same drop with Herold. Atzerodt was the only one of the party bareheaded. A white handkerchief was placed over his head to protect him from the sun, and Rev. Dr. Butler held an umbrella over him to the same end. He was dressed in the same suit of pepper and salt coarse material worn by him in the trial room. He, too, as well as Herold and Payne, was in his stockings. He sat in the same crouched position familiar to all who saw him on his trial, and at first was rather undemonstrative. The lips of Herold were seen in motion repeating the prayers whispered to him by Rev. Dr. Olds.

Payne sat with face upturned, with a sort of defiant air, as if for effect. He once put his lips to the ear of Dr. Gillette, and whispered something to that gentleman.

THE DEATH WARRANT READ TO THEM.

The criminals having been placed upon the platform, General Hartranft advanced to the front, and read in a clear voice the death warrants of the prisoners. Following upon this came the last few words of whispered religious consolation to the doomed ones. Fathers Wiget and Walter administered the dying service of the Catholic Church to Mrs. Surratt, holding the cross to her lips. Atzerodt at this time seemed to be muttering a prayer.

Dr. Gillette here advanced to the front of the platform and said that the prisoner, Lewis Thornton Powell, otherwise Payne, requested him to thus publicly and sincerely return his thanks to Gen. Hartranft, the other officers, the soldiers, and all persons who had had charge of him and had attended him. Not one unkind word, look or gesture had been given to him by any one. Dr. Gillette then followed in a fervent prayer in behalf of the prisoner, during which Payne's eyes momentarily filled with tears, and he followed in the prayer with visible feeling. Hev. Dr. Olds followed, saying in behalf of the prisoner, David E. Herold, that he tendered his forgiveness to all who had wronged him, and asked the forgiveness of all whom he had wronged. He gave his thanks to the officers and guards for kinduesses rendered him. He hopes that he dies in charity with all men and at peace with God. Dr. Olds concluded with a feeling prayer for the prisoner. Rev. Dr. Butler then made a similar return of tranks on behalf of George A. Atzerodt for kindnesses received from his guards and attendants, and concluded with an earnest invocationin behalf of the criminal, saying that the blood of Jesus cleanses from all sin, and asking that God Almighty might have mercy upon

The criminals were now brought forward to the front of the platform and placed over the Atzerodt was the first up. His arms were bound behind him with strips of white cotton cloth. He was similarly bound at the knees and at the ankles. Herold, Payne, and Mts. Surratt were bound in the same manner; the operation with the latter requiring more time than with the others, from the difficulty of dealing with her dress. The fatal neoses were now opened to admit the heads of the criminals, and the knots, as usual, were adjusted exactly under the left ear. Payne worked his neck in his noose as if dissatisfied with the adjustment, and the noose was widened a little to. suit his ample neck.

Mrs.Surratt seemed to find it difficult to stand! and said to those near her, "Please don't let me fall." This was just before the drop fell.. Atzerodt, who seemed to grow excited as his last moments approached, just before the whitecap was placed over his head, attempted in a gasping manner to address the spectators. His parched lips would not obey the helm, and it was distressing to see him convulsively endeavering to make himself intelligible. At last he managed to get out the words; "Gentlemen, take ware," meaning, evidently, " take warning." The white cap was drawn over his head, as was done, with the others, and it was supposed no more would be heard from the prisoners. But just before the drop fell Atzerodt's voice was again heard in muffled accents, saying "Good by, gendemen. who are before me now. May we all meet in the other world! God help me now! Oh! Oh! Oh!" and as the last broken exclamationswere on his lips the drop fell, and the fourcriminals hung quivering in theair.

THE LAST SCENE.

At twenty-six minutes past one clclock the signal was given by a wave of the hand; the large blocks supporting the uprights were knocked out, the drops fell with a beary slam, and the four bodies hung suspended. Payne's limbs were drawn up several times, and for a moment or two his whole frame quivered violently, but within five minutes all was still. Herold struggled some, and some emissions of water took place from the body, such as is frequently the case with persons dving a violent death. There was no perceptible movement of the body of Atzeredt; and he apparently died easy. There was only a slight movement of the limbs of Mrs. Surratt observed. There was breathless silence for several minutes after the drop toll, but in a short time persons commenced to, move about as

THE EODIES CUT DOWN. The bodies were allowed to hang about 20 minutes, when Surgeon Otis, U. S. V., and Assistant Surgeons Woodward and Porter, U.S. A., examined them and propounced all dead. In about 10 minutes more a ladder was placed against the scaffold preparatory to cutting the bodies down. An over zealous soldier on the platform reached over and severed the cord, letting the body fall with a heavy thump, when he was was immediately ordered down and repremanded. The body of Atzerodt was placed in a strong white pine box, and the other bodies were cut down in the following order: David Herold, Lewis Payne Powell, and Mr Mary E. Surratt. The surgeon examined cach body as it was lowered, but the poose in the cases of Atzerodt and Payne having caught so near the base of the skull, it could not be determined weether the neck was broken or not. Herold's neek is supposed to have been broken, and Mrs. Surratt's was propounced lo have been broken positively.

THE BODIES BURIED. The bodies being laid in the boxes, each of which was marked with the name of the party, were place in the graves before mentioned and buried by a detail of the 1st corps.

It is understood that the friends of Mrs. Surratt, Herold and Atzerodt made application for the remains, but the authorities declined for the present to grant the requests.

By The report of the Mary Harris trial, and other interesting matter, is necessarily crowded out to-day by our very full account of the Great Execution.

HYDAULIC SAND PUMP.

Practical tests having fully demonstrated the superiority of this machine over all others for the purpose of sinking Oil Wells, the undersigned is now prepared to receive orders for the same.

This machinery comprises everything requisite for the boring of oil wells excepting the STEAM ENGINE AND CAST IRON DRIVING PIPE, (but will be furnished, if desired, at a reasonable price,) and dispenses with the use of the derrick rope, bull-wheel and other cumbrous and expensive fixtures now in use, and is so arranged, being constructed on wheels and portable, that it can be easily removed for the purpose of sinking wells in easily removed for the purpose of sinking wells in different localities.

The detritus is removed from the well by our patent hydraulic process, and does not require the removal of the drill from the boring. This process not only removes all the detritus in from 5 to 10 minutes, but likewise effectually clears out and opens all the small oil veins that are so often entirely closed up by the old process of sand pumping.

With this machine and a practical engineer, a well can be sunk from 400 to 600 feet within a period of from 16 to 30 days after the seil pipe has been driven.

Arrangements are being made for the construction and delivery of these machines at New York, Norwich, Newburg, N. Y., and Pittsburg, Pa. For further information, price, terms, &c., address SIMEON LELAND, Metropolitan Hotel, New York
